Flying fish

Minsitry of Natural Resources staff used the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Preserve as a base during their aerial fish stocking program last Wednesday. Above, hatchery technician Kevin Pinkerton pours the trout and splake fingerlings into a funnel which feeds into the tank in the helicopter. Holding the funnel is Minden Fish and Wildlife technician Marcel DeMars and Conservation Officer Barry Walker, left. At right, co-op student Jamie Adams from Gravenhurst takes his turn holding the funnel.

Lakes in the Minden area were subject to an airborne assault of a different kind last week.

On Wednesday and Saturday, Ministry of Natural Resources staff took part in a fish stocking program using a helicopter.

This method is used to stock lakes which would be difficult to access by truck.

More than 56,000 fish were dropped into 28 different area lakes on Wednesday. The program involved splake, rainbow trout, brook trout and lake trout.

The number, and kind, of fish planted in each lake is determined by lake size, lake productivity and the amount of fishing that occurs.

The helicopter is fitted with a special holding tank, and the fish are released into the water while the pilot hovers close to the surface.

Interested anglers can obtain information on which lakes have been stocked from the Minden District office.

County's move reflects long-term planning

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden's reeve is continuing to defend the county's decision to move the county offices out of Minden village.

In an interview last week, Reeve Ray Moore said the decision to move the offices to the Allsaw Flats is the result of long-term planning.

"Yes we could put an addition on the current building for $100,000 and it would do us for three to five years," said Moore. "What we're doing is trying to look at the next 20 to 50 years."

In March county council approved the purchase of a 4.6 acre site on Highway 121 east of the village for $44,000 with the intention of building a new county complex on the site.

Both Moore and Minden's deputy-reeve, Bern Berry, voted in favour of the move.

However at the last meeting of Minden council Berry said he'd had a change of heart since the vote and initiated a formal objection to the county's plan.

Berry and the three councillors voted not to grant

JOBS: The former employees of G.W. Martin Lumber are now awaiting a response from Lyn McLeod

The fate of 125 former G.W. Martin workers now rests with Natural Resources Minister Lyn McLeod.

The minister is expected to soon make a decision on the application to transfer Martin's Crown timber rights to Robert Bury and Company, the buyers of the Harcourt saw mill.

Algonquin Regional Forester Terry Dodds says he has completed his review of Bury's rationale plan and has made a recommendation to McLeod. He wouldn't say what that recommendation is.

Helena Moncrieff, a spokesperson in the minister's office told The Times that McLeod is reviewing the recommendation and will soon be making her decision.

Representatives of Haliburton and Hastings County Councils met with McLeod in Toronto last Monday and Warden Don Shortreed says he feels optimistic. "It was as good as could be expected," Shortreed said of the meeting. "I'm optimistic about it. She didn't give us a direct answer, but she's aware that time is of the essence."

Monday's meeting was designed to address the final final roadblock in the sale of the saw mill. The Harcourt mill closed its doors almost a year ago, laying off 125 employees after unsuccessfully trying to sell the division since September of 1988. Robert Bury and Company's recent offer to purchase sparked new hope that the employees might regain their jobs, but the sale hinges on the ministry's willingness to transfer Martin's timber rights over to the new company.

"The deal hinges on this," said Shortreed. "It's imperative that this goes through. We don't have anything to fall back on" to replace the lost jobs, he said. "We explained that to her."

In addition to the 125 people employed directly by the mill, it is estimated there are another 175 people in the logging and transportation industries who are indirectly affected by this sale. The deal, however, will not be closed unless the timber rights are transferred.

In attendance at Monday's meeting were Shortreed, Dysart Reeve Bill Davis, Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman, the county's chief administrative officer Gary McKnight, Hastings Warden Bruce Davis, and MPP John Eakins.

Shortreed said the group came armed with statistics about the employment situation in this area. They made sure McLeod is aware of the impact the loss of 125 jobs will have on the economy and the welfare system.

Shortreed also said they received strong support from Eakins at this meeting. "He sure went to bat for us, like he always does."

Soda Club is refreshing fun

by Carol Moffatt

There's a new party in town—that is, if you're between 11 and 18 years old.

The Soda Club opened its doors on Friday at the Stanhope Firefighter's Hall. It's organized and run by Stanhope's Recreation Committee, with Chairperson Thelda McGuire at the helm.

"When we moved into the area I asked around about things for kids to do and quickly found that there wasn't much," she said. She asked kids what they wanted to do and the general consensus was that they needed a place to go that was cheap and away from their parents.

The committee got things rolling and members went around to schools promoting the idea. "The response was great," said McGuire. More than 40 youngsters converged on the firehall to check out the action which consists of games, cards, contests, a wide range of music, ping pong and even basketball.

The biggest problem seems to be transportation. It's a long way for parents to go twice in one night. As a solution the committee has established a 'parent's room' downstairs where parents can wait for their kids, have a coffee and talk with other parents. "Who knows," said McGuire, "maybe they can start a euchre club or something of their own."

Parental response to the idea is supportive. Although most dropped off their kids and left, some waited around for a while to see how things worked out. Vince Lancia of Kennisis Lake is pleased with the club. "At least I know where my kids are," he said.

Nancy Garbutt of Minden agreed. "It's a great idea," she said. "It's somewhere for kids to go to be FINGER PICKING GOOD: Don Evans, left, and John McLennon were two of the musicians who were at the Dorset Elementary School last Wednesday, day to participate in a music morning. Evans and McLennon, who are members of the local band Due North, spoke with the children about their music and instruments, who entertained with some samples of their skill. Dorset principal Michele Coneybeare said the morning was planned as part of Education Week and helped to get people from the community involved in the school.

Moore still supports county's decision

the county's request to waive a conditional access required for the Allsaw property.

The vote was only a token gesture that has no real effect on the county's ability to use the property, but it sent a message of Minden council's opposition to the proposed move. It also isolated Moore as the one member of the municipal council who still supports county council's position.

Moore says the growth of the county government and a lack of space in Minden village make the move necessary.

If the county were to go ahead with the expansion at the present site, Moore says it would have to provide 107 parking spaces under Minden's zoning by-law. That would require the expropriation of neighbouring property at great expense, he says.

As it is now, Moore says the county does not provide enough on-site parking to meet the by-law's requirements. Although there is a large municipal parking lot behind the county offices on Pritchard Lane, Moore says on days when county council is meeting and provincial court is in session at the municipal building most of the available spaces are occupied.

Also with an increase in the county staff, Moore says room has to be found to accommodate new people. The county is in the process of adding a planner and a payroll clerk to the staff and Moore says office space is limited.

He would also like to see all county operations housed under one roof. Currently the Registry Office and Social Services are sharing space in a building across from the county office.

A new building will also allow for an expansion of services says Moore. If the new complex were to include a county court facility, Moore says serious offences could be tried locally instead of being sent to Lindsay.

The shortage of space in the Newcastle Street location also puts a strain on the scheduling of meetings that take place at the county level.

As it is, Moore says the county road committee has to meet in Minden's municipal chambers and Social Services has to meet at Hyland Crest. As the county grows, Moore says meetings will be held more frequently and more space will be required.

One of the arguments used against the move is based on the Charter of 1874 that designates Minden village as the seat of county government. But Moore says the Charter also gives county council the power to change the location of the county government.

If the offices are going to be moved, Moore says it's better to have them stay in the township but move out of the village rather than lose the county headquarters to another municipality.

ASES code is being updated

The Code of Behaviour for Archie Stouffer Elementary School is being updated and should be ready to implement by the new school year in September.

ASES vice principal Judy Tomlinson-Ross, told parents about the revised code during the general meeting of the home and school association last Wednesday. Tomlinson-Ross is also a member and spokesperson for the committee that is updating the code.

The idea to examine the code of behaviour for the school came up at a professional development day in February, she said. Some felt the code should be revised and updated.

Questionnaires were sent out to all parents. In addition, many of the students were invited to participate in the process, she said.

"We were flabbergasted by the return," Tomlinson-Ross said of the response to the questionnaire. More than 100 students filled them out, as did 188 parents. As a result, a committee made up of parents, teachers and students was formed to examine the code.

The committee has been working to compile all the information in the questionnaires to find out what areas of the code most people feel need revising. She said the committee hopes to have its work done by the end of June so that a new code of behaviour can be in place for September.

The new code will be more than a set of rules, said Tomlinson-Ross. Behind every rule will be an explanation of why that rule is necessary.

For example, one rule might state that ghetto blasters and walkmans will not be allowed in the school. The reason behind that rule might be that they are disruptive, expensive and liable to be stolen or broken.

Tomlinson-Ross said there were a lot of good suggestions that resulted from the questionnaires. About 25 rules in the present code of behaviour have been identified as needing revision, she said.

Once the code is revised, every student or parent will receive a copy. "I think it will be good for everyone to know," she said. "That way we're all on the same level."

Kids enjoy visit with Quibble the beaver

Beavers are very special animals, the kids at Minden's CHACE Daycare Centre learned last Wednesday when they were visited by Audrey Tournay and her friend Quibble.

Many animals rely on beavers to protect their wetlands by building dams, Tournay told the children and parents who came out to meet and pet Quibble.

Quibble is a four-year-old beaver that lives with Tournay at the Aspden Wildlife Sanctuary near Rosseau. Like so many other animals that make their home at the sanctuary, Quibble was adopted after his parents were killed by men who blew up his beaver lodge.

With Quibble fidgeting in Tournay's lap, the children listened intently as she related some information about beavers and other animals that make their home at her sanctuary.

Beavers are well equipped for their work in the wild, said Tournay. They use their broad flat tail as a rudder while swimming through ponds. Their large hind feet are like paddles that push them through the water and their sharp teeth enable them to gnaw through trees in order to build dams that keep the ponds from drying up in the summer.

The Aspden Wildlife Sanctuary opened by chance in the early '70s when people began to bring orphaned and wounded animals to her for care. It started out very small and has continued to grow. As more people learned about the service she offered, Tournay's sanctuary grew, and in 1980 she says it really took off.

In addition to Quibble, Tournay has adopted bears, foxes, raccoons, coyotes and a wide variety of birds that for various reasons are unable to survive in the wilderness on their own. Although she loves all the animals that come to stay with her, she says her goal is always to raise them until they are capable of being returned to the wild.

Quibble, however, will be a full-time resident of the sanctuary. Unlike most animals, beavers rely on their parents to teach them what they need to know in order to live in the wild. Quibble never had the chance to learn those lessons and is now content to live in Tournay's home.

"The sad thing about beavers is that they need their mom and dad to learn about life in the wild," Tournay told the children. Since Quibble can't be returned to the wild, "he sleeps in the house with me and teaches me all kinds of beaver stuff, like eating through doors."

For the past few months, she has taken care of three bear cubs that are now just about ready to be released. Thanks to public donations, these bears will soon be flown to remote areas of northern Ontario to be set free.

For the past few years Tournay and Quibble have been frequent visitors at schools and daycare centres throughout Muskoka and Parry Sound. Quibble retired from this activity a short while ago and was replaced by a porcupine.

The industrious little fellow came out of retirement upon special request for the visit to Minden and it was plain to see he still enjoys the petting and attention he receives from all the children.

Alternatives

The following is in response to Minden Reeve Ray Moore's invitation for alternatives to moving the county offices out to the Allsaw Flats. (The Reeve's letter is on Page 5)

It is difficult to know what alternatives have or haven't been discussed by the county's Management Committee, since the meetings are closed to the public. In the past three years, this issue has been mentioned only two times at a full public meeting of the county—once during Warden Don Shortreed's inaugural address in December and most recently when the purchase of the Allsaw property was formalized.

Reeve Moore notes that the plans for an expansion were almost ready to go to tender. What stopped this from happening? Who are the "experts" who recommended moving county offices?

If there is such a shortage of parking, why did the municipality agree to sell the Village Green, where there were an existing 16 spaces and room for many more? Was the rest of Minden council aware of this parking crisis when the sale of the Village Green was proposed? And was the person who bought this property for a professional building aware the court and registry office would be moved out of town, likely drawing lawyers with it?

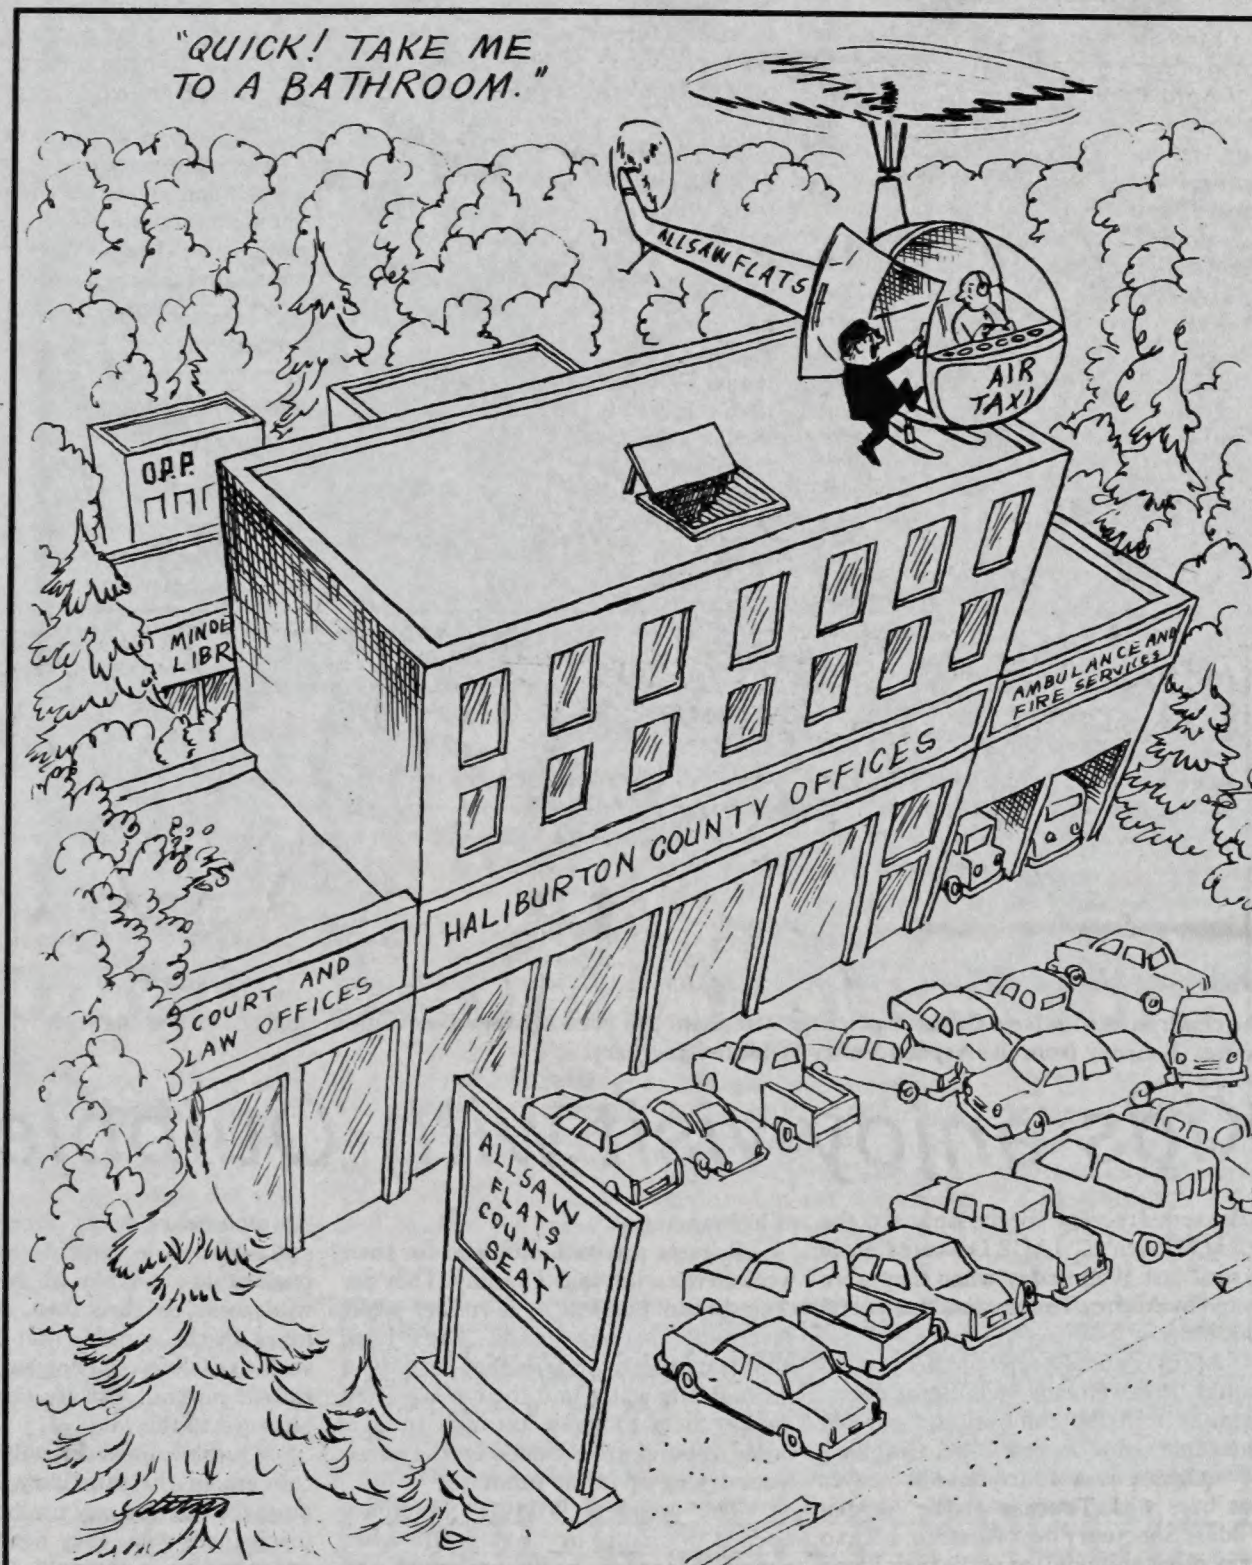

Over the past 15 years, every house on the block where the present county building is located has been up for sale. Has the county ever considered buying any of these in order to accommodate an expansion? Has the county considered expanding upwards with another floor on the present building?

Has the county considered the fact that it is facilitating the creation of a new village by moving the county office, the court, the registry office, the library etc. to the Allsaw Flats? Is the county prepared to service this area with sewers and water?

You asked for alternatives, but until these questions are answered, I can only speculate. Maybe some background information would help.

As Moore notes, residents of Wilberforce, Harcourt, Gooderham and Cardiff may not disagree with the move. However, they are not losing something that has existed for more than a century in their communities. We're sure their elected representatives would be fighting this tooth and nail if that were the case.

Let's see some open discussion on this matter before construction begins on this new complex.

Advertising is eggs-actly what's needed

"We manipulate nature as if we were stuffing an Alsatian goose. We create new forms of energy; we make new elements; we kill crops we wash brains. I can hear them in the dark sharpening their lasers."

A fellow by the name of Erwin Charger wrote that in a magazine called Columbia Forum. What amazes me is that he wrote it more than 20 years ago, long before he could possibly have heard of:

Somatotropin.

Square trees.

Egg advertising.

Nope, I didn't make any of those three things up.

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

Scientists did. And stories about their discoveries turned up in recent editions of my newspaper.

Not on the front page, you understand. These aren't important stories like Bill Vander Zalm's latest Meech Lake pipedream or an update on the ongoing Harold and Yolanda Soap Opera—a.k.a. The Old and The Senseless. No, these stories merely threaten to change the way you and I live—hence their relegation to Section C, Page 37, right next to the Truss ads.

Since we're in the ad department, let's take a look at the last phenom first: egg advertising.

This brave leap forward comes to us from Golden Eggs Inc., an Israeli Company that claims to have perfected a method of imprinting advertising slogans, brand names—even commercials—onto the shells of regular, everyday store-bought eggs. Rafi Orel, president of Golden Eggs is ecstatic. "You can't ignore it when you open the refrigerator. It's shouting at you, 'Here I am!'"

Reeve defends decision to relocate county offices

Editor,

I feel an explanation to your readers is in order regarding The Times editorial of April 30, 1990.

Maybe some background information on the decision of moving the county offices would help. When one becomes reeve, you don't instantly acquire the wisdom of Solomon. One can only rely on God-given common sense to look to an overview of any situation; to hear all the rhetoric for or against, then try to make an unbiased, non parochial decision based on the facts.

I have sat on the management committee of county council for 16 months. Many hours of discussion have taken place in regard to the severe shortage of office space and parking at the county building. The roads department addition solved the problem for a few years.

However, county has been given a recommendation by the provincial government to restructure the county, take over waste management, establish an official plan and look to economic development for the county. These are all new initiatives. The county is in the process of hiring a planner and economic development officer. We have no office for this person. Some temporary space has to be found.

An addition to the present building has been discussed to the point of almost hiring an architect and going to tender. We have been told by experts that relocation seems to be the most logical answer. To conform to Anson, Hindon and Minden's by-law 86-26, 107 parking spots are required for the total complex if built in Minden village. This equates to 40,000 square feet or 5.3 town lots just for parking. To purchase five or six homes in the immediate area would cost in excess of $500,000, plus the time involved in expropriation.

Show the committee an alternative. Criticism is the easiest form of having no ideas.

Taking into account the restructuring of Minden and area, the offices of the municipality will also require possible expansion. The playground east of the municipal offices may have to relocate.

Therefore, after much discussion, it became evident back in January to all the Reeves that a property purchase of significant size must be completed, looking to a 40- to 50-year future.

The decision on the property, 4.6 acres of land bounded by Highway 121 east and Robertson Road, appears to fit the criteria. Fortunately, it is centralized between the two major population bases.

Our deputy reeve and council were apprised of the conditional offer on the property, the purpose and intent. I believe all councils knew of the impending resolution coming to county council for ratification in March. There were no dissenting comments or votes from any county councillors. The resolution passed.

All of a sudden, without talking to me, Minden council opened a debate with nothing but negative comments about the moving of the county offices at our last meeting on April 26. A resolution was defeated by council relating to the move. I was the only one in favour.

After the offer was accepted, preliminary discussion by the management committee came to the conclusion that the new county offices, fragmented throughout the county, would be in one building. The new facility would have the potential to house a county court building, the social services, welfare, children's services, the county roads, planning, waste management, land division, library and accounting departments. Further consideration was given to relocating the Registry Office, adding land titles to it as in most counties.

Residents of Wilberforce, Harcourt, Gooderham and Cardiff might not disagree with the proposed changes. It is not an easy role to be wearing two hats at county council. The decision was based on what is good for the county.

To this point, I have heard from only two parties, one being a former warden, about this issue and I feel they now understand the position county council is in. My vision of Anson, Hindon and Minden has not changed and I am willing to listen to all input from anyone. Give me your solutions as you see it. My mind responds to positive action. I can only suggest The Times editorial staff look at alternatives—it's your future as well—or accept the elected county council decision.

How to build a better tree

Indeed. Just what I need when, bloodshot of eye and baggy of bathrobe, I groggily wrench open the fridge door in the pre-dawn gloom: a chorus line of Grage A medium ovoid Rockettes doing a Can Can rendition called 'Here I am!'

How to find relief from my strident eggs -- a quiet walk in the woods? Not likely. Robert Falls is busy in there, growing square trees.

Well, sure...just good business sense, when you think about it. Round trees are wasteful. When you turn 'em into straightened timber, about forty percent of the log winds up on the sawmill floor. Scientist Falls has been monkeying around with saplings, stimulating them to grow extra wood cells at four points of their growth rings -- squaring the circle, as it were. Says Falls "even if there's only a five percent increase, that would translate into millions of dollars."

Then there's somatotropin - a growth hormone Cornell University researchers say will do for cows udders what Stanazolol did for Ben Johnson's hamstrings. Somatotropin increases a cow's milk production by a whopping 25 to 30 percent.

There's an interesting double standard in play here: athletes caught using growth hormones are in disgrace. When Elsie the Cow shoots up we feed the result to our kids.

Interesting economic theory in play here too: dairy farmers are already failing because of glut of milk on the market. So we plan to goose the volume another 25 percent?

Square poplars. A hard boiled egg in my breakfast egg cup with "BUY KODAK" stamped on its shell. Weary Holsteins gushing milk like so many black and white fire hydrants.

You know, 'way back when eggs were tasty, milk was rich and trees were in charge of themselves, a cartoonist by the name of Al Capp invented an animal called the Shmoo. The Shmoo was about the size and shape of a bowling pin. They were friendly, bred like minks and best of all, could become any kind of food you wanted, from flapjacks to filet mignon.

Of course, the Shmoo is nothing more than a fantasy. A cartoon invention. So far.

Club appreciate support

Editor:

The Minden Skating Club would like to thank you for your generous donation to our Skating Carnival.

The skaters had a great time showing off their talents to their friends, families and the community this year.

We hope you were able to attend the Carnival this year and enjoy it as much as we did. We really appreciate the continued support you have shown us over the years. Without your support we certainly could not put on such a show.

Clean up the litter

Editor:

Now that Spring has arrived I do hope the Department of Highway officials will see fit to have their crews out to clean up the ditches along Highway 35.

Unfortunately there are many individuals using our roads who care little about defacing our beautiful area. Cans, bottles, fast-food containers and even corrugated cartons can be seen along the highway between Minden and Carnarvon.

What a shame to mar such beautiful scenery.

The tourist business is the bread and butter of this part of Ontario and we should be putting our best foot forward.

Possibly we should follow the U.S. policy and post signs warning of the penalty of littering and follow through with convictions of the culprits.

Helen Burton,
Minden.

Teacher a heroine

Editor:

We think our Enrichment teacher, Bernie Davis, is a heroine in recycling for she has inspired our whole school to recycle pop cans, plastic bags, etc.

She has helped students with a plastic bag depot and then made arrangements for the bags to be transferred to Toronto. She has also helped us bring environmentally friendly lunches to school and has even helped students with a used clothing depot. She has also got the teachers to use mugs instead of styrofoam cups at staff meetings. She helped many of us with projects such as going to council meetings to get blue boxes in different areas and composting and lots of other projects.

As early as three years ago, she began a campaign in our school for recycling. She has influenced everybody in this school to change their thinking. So we think Bernie Davis is a real heroine.

SUCCESS

Little Theatre musical brims with enthusiasm and heart

Certainly one of the most ambitious undertakings of the company's decade of productions, Highlands Little Theatre most recent staging, How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, was brimming with enthusiasm and heart. Under the direction of Nancy Robichaud, more than 50 cast and crew presented the former Broadway musical Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the high school.

The play centres around the aspirations of a young businessman, Pierpont Finch, played by Glen Carter, who is determined to rocket his way up the corporate ladder. On his way from a mail room clerk to the chairman of the board he encounters an array of yes-men, struggling corporate aspirants, a love interest and the boss's mistress.

His main rival is one Bud Frump, played by Wayne Cooper. A nephew to the boss, Bud uses his family connections to thwart the efforts of this upstart, but more often than not gets trapped by his own schemes. The boss, J.B. Biggley, played by veteran Curtis Eastmure, is caught between nepotism and his own business sense. His interest in the success of his corporation is further diverted by his mistress and unskilled, but beautiful secretary, Hedy La Rue, played by Heather Scully.

Throughout the play, secretary Rosemary

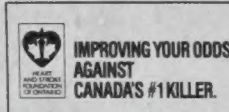

Pilkington, played by Faline Pierson, attempts to attract the romantic attention of Finch, but his mind is more on business than romance. Assisted by office supervisor Smitty, played by Ruth Lewis, young Rosemary is thwarted in almost every attempt to capture the heart of the aggressive executive. Of course, by the final curtain, she has won him over.

The play, as it is written is a daunting challenge. It is a large, multi-faceted story requiring numerous scenes and tableaux. While the company handled it well, it was obvious at times the facilities did not meet the needs of the production. Lengthy scene changes broke the continuity and the left the audience hungry for the action to continue.

This is the first major musical the company has attempted. It has added a new and exciting dimension to the talents and abilities of the group. While it is certainly an avenue the company should continue to explore, there is obviously some distance to go before they can be as comfortable and creative as they now are with non-musical productions. Congratulations are in order for everyone associated with this effort. It is encouraging to see the company moving into new areas of stage presentations.

Environmental assessments are vital

It is now clear that human activity is having enormous effects on the planet. Today, all proposed major developments should be subjected to a detailed and probing environmental assessment.

However, there are several limitations to such reviews. For one thing, they are far too limited in scale, scope and duration to give us much more than the most crude data. But there is another serious flaw—the process is often stacked in favor of the proposed project.

Professor Adrian Tanner of the Department of Anthropology at Newfoundland's Memorial University has been deeply involved in assessing the impact of low-level flights over Labrador. This is the case he presents:

"Starting with Rafferty-Alameda, some recent court decisions subjecting development projects to an Environmental Assessment and Review Process (EARP) have been greeted as victories. However, present federal EARP process is not yet the panacea for the ills of industrialization. The cards are stacked in favor of developers.

"In warfare, the first victim is truth. So it has been in the campaign to turn Labrador and adjacent Quebec over to NATO countries for military training. The Innu, the Indians of the region, were the project's first opponents. In the early 1980s when they objected to ear-shattering overflights, they were opposed by local pro-development groups and the Department of National Defence (DND), and were stonewalled by federal and provincial politicians. Then the offer was made by DND to NATO to use the region for an equivalent to the U.S. facilities in Nevada, for supersonic top-gun dog-fighting practice, live and dummy bombing ranges, and other high-tech military training.

"Finally in 1986, an EARP was belatedly begun

Reflections

by Dr. David Suzuki

on both low-level flying and the NATO proposal. This required DND to submit an environmental impact study to an independent panel. In theory, the process allows governments to make objective decisions on development projects, in keeping with policies of environmental protection and social development. But the environment involves humans, and perspectives of various human groups. For aboriginal people, the land is not a wilderness, but their homeland.

"Understanding the impact of development means understanding human values and perspectives.

"The panel tried to get DND to see this. It told them the aboriginal perspective must be included in the study. Instead of asking that all low-level flights be cancelled, the panel asked for the number of flights to be frozen at the 1986 level. DND refused, and the number has increased every year since. The Innu were thus left to seek an injunction to end the flights entirely, one of their arguments being that no prior environmental clearance was given, as required by law.

"Now the environmental impact study has been released, the panel has found it seriously inadequate and in need of further work. They have again asked for the cap on flights, which DND has also rejected under the absurd pretext that this would close down Goose Bay. And the public is asking why a $6-million study is effectively worthless.

"The study has problems on every page. Its description of the proposal is inadequate, not even identifying the vast areas for bombing, target and supersonic flight practice, which effectively exempts them from assessment. Its use of existing scientific data, particularly on noise, is distorted. It has failed to cite a wide range of existing studies, or to conduct its own research where data are not yet available. It proposes "avoidance" of people and sensitive wildlife by the military, without demonstrating that this is feasible. And the aboriginal perspectives are totally avoided.

"This is not just my opinion, but that of numerous specialists. The study's errors and distortions which consistently minimizes the negative impacts of the project.

"A major problem with the present process is that DND had total control over who conducted the study and how it was done. It is common knowledge among the subcontractors that the results of many component studies were never included in the final report, while in other cases results were included only selectively. The consultants involved cannot legally complain publicly and if they did, would gain the unwanted reputation as troublemakers.

"The only check against such distortions are the public interest groups who were allowed to criticize the report. However, the funding available to them was minuscule compared to that spent by DND. Due mainly to the ability of the Innu to find independent scientists who could critically examine the report, and to the independence shown by the panel, a sham has been exposed.

"But this is not a victory for environmental stewardship and social responsibility. Last Tuesday, for the 10th year, the low-level flights were due to start screaming over the heads of Innu hunters and the wildlife. The EARP process has yet to offer them any real protection."

Oshawa artist brings memories to life

John Deramaix's sculptures are like paintings that leap from the canvas

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Drawing from his experience with restoring old buildings in Europe, John Deramaix has developed a unique style of sculpting that brings his work to life.

Deramaix, who now lives in Oshawa, brought his work to Minden as part of the Ajax Creative Artists show presently being featured at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery.

By creating three dimensional scenes set on a flat background, Deramaix creates sculptures that resemble paintings which have leapt from the canvas.

Working first in plasticine, Deramaix painstakingly sculpts the scene he has in mind. He then cuts the sculpture into different pieces and makes a plaster mold of each one.

Each piece is then recast in plaster using the molds and reassembled into the original scene.

Each sculpture can take up to three years to complete. Deramaix says he works on the plasticine original for about a year, then puts it away for as long as another year. When he's ready to make the plaster casts, Deramaix takes a second look at the original to make sure it's the way he wants it.

He developed the style using skills he learned in his native country, Belgium. There he worked as a mold maker for an ornamental design company that specialized in restoring sculpted design work in old buildings.

"When I came over here, I found there was no work in that field," said Deramaix. "So I took the basics I learned in Belgium and put them into this kind of work."

"By using the techniques and working by trial and error I made modifications to suit my needs and requirements," he said. "I had to do a lot of experimenting, but I think I have found what I've been looking for to express myself."

When he was doing restoration work in buildings, Deramaix worked mostly from photographs and says he never had an interest in working from drawings.

"I don't sketch too much, I just go with an idea and work from there."

Deramaix tries to tell a story with each of his pieces and draws from memories from his own life for inspiration. One of his works depicts a large tree with a young boy building a tree house and a girl playing on a swing.

The scene is based on a tree his children used to play on in the yard of Deramaix's house when he lived in Pickering.

One of his earlier sculptures, titled 'Fishing Party' shows a man and a boy fishing in a small stream under the shade of a tree. Deramaix says his son

Mountain Lake rezoning denied by council

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council has denied a rezoning request for a Mountain Lake property because a dispute over maintenance of Burch Drive remains unresolved.

Stephen Dawson had applied to have his property rezoned to Residential Limited Services, in order to allow him to sever the parcel into three lots.

But Estella Burch objected to the severances because the lots would be accessed by Burch Drive. Although the road is owned by the municipality, Burch is responsible for the upkeep of the road on behalf of the five lots it services.

Burch and Dawson appeared at the April 12 council meeting but were unable to come to an agreement about maintenance of the road.

Council gave the two neighbours until the following meeting to come to terms.

The issue resurfaced last council meeting, but with Burch and Dawson still at odds, council voted not to pass the rezoning.

Deputy Reeve Bern Berry said that after the April 12 meeting it had seemed that Burch and Dawson were very close to coming to an agreement.

But Burch said that she found the whole issue "very upsetting" and she realized that if she had this much trouble with five lots on Burch Drive she didn't feel she could handle eight lots.

Planning Advisory Chairman Dean Elliott was also at the meeting and he addressed council saying he was acting on behalf of Dawson.

He told council that what

Dawson requested was a simple rezoning, and access by Burch Drive was not an issue for council to consider.

Because the application would rezone the lots to Residential Limited Services, the by-law allows them to be accessed by water only.

Elliott said access to the new lots by Burch Drive was a problem for Burch and Dawson to resolve on their own because it's not a requirement of the by-law.

Burch asked to council to specify in the by-law that access to the new lots be restricted to Mountain Lake and not by the road. But Reeve Ray Moore said council is limited on the restrictions it can place on severances.

Burch had drawn up an agreement which would require each of the new lots to contribute a fair share of the road maintenance costs. Dawson has since offered to sign the agreement.

Berry said he was puzzled by the fact that Burch seemed no longer willing to accept the agreement she gave to Dawson.

Burch explained that she doesn't want to be responsible for the extra lots on the road.

Moore called the dispute a "moral situation" which he described as solvable. "It's really not a council problem," he said. "We can't resolve it for you."

But Burch said she would appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board if the rezoning was approved. She said creating the extra lots would violate the subdivision agreement between herself and the municipality that was signed when she created the five original lots on the road.

When it came time to vote on the rezoning, only Berry voted in favour of granting Dawson's request. Without the rezoning, Dawson will be unable to get his severances.

Hiding seams is hard suggested the subject for the piece while the two of them were out fishing together.

Deramaix began working with bas relief plaques, but says he prefers the effect he gets with the fully sculpted pieces. "There is 180 degrees of picture," he says. "As you walk around the picture changes to look like something different."

When working on a new piece, Deramaix says he always has to keep in mind how he is going to be able to make the plaster casts. "It may look fine to the eyes, but I have to think if it is going to be fine for the casting process."

He says one of the most difficult aspects of his work is hiding the seams where the different pieces of the sculpture are joined together. But by sculpting the plaster along the seam line, Deramaix is able to hide the seams from even the most observant eyes.

One of his next projects is to photograph some of his art work and create a series of greeting cards.

As an off-shoot of his sculpting, Deramaix has developed an interest and expertise in photography. A picture of one of his sculptures was recently chosen by the Durham Board of Education for use in a calendar.

The Ajax Creative Artists show, featuring oils, watercolours and crafts, will be at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery until May 26 and examples of Deramaix's work will be on display throughout this week.

Recession is the time to get competitive

CITC BOARD OF DIRECTORS FOR 1990: At their annual meeting held at the PineStone Inn last Wednesday, the Community Industrial Training Committee elected their new directors. Serving on the board this year are Doug Maddock, Elmer Buchanan, Terry Crowe, Donna Tentorey, Lee Heath, Kim Parish, Ken Langdon, Rhonda Elstone, Herman Poppe, Andy Campbell, Anne Larcade and Joyce Potts. The executive committee will be chosen at the first meeting.

Training is the best tool we can use

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Local businesses should take advantage of the current economic downturn to promote the importance of training and re-education in the workforce, says last year's chairperson of the Bancroft-Haliburton Community Industrial Training Committee (CITC).

Speaking at last Wednesday's CITC annual meeting, Anne Larcade told the members that 1991 "promises to be one of unprecedented opportunity for the CITC."

Larcade said the local businesses will be looking to expand their markets and improve their competitiveness during an economic slowdown, and the CITC should use that opportunity to market the value of training as an effective business tool.

"This is also an ideal opportunity to strengthen our local economic base by ensuring that our workforce is trained and prepared for the challenges of the 90's," Larcade said.

The CITC is jointly funded by the federal and provincial governments and provides training programs for both employed and unemployed people in the Bancroft and Haliburton areas.

Larcade encouraged the members to talk to local high school students and find out what their training needs are for entry into the workforce. Talking to high school students is really "going back to the roots of our next economy," she said.

Training essential to survival of resorts

"As Canadians we are traditionally very conservative in our approach to finding solutions to business problems," said Larcade. "If we are to remain competitive in an expanding global marketplace, we have to re-educate ourselves and our employees to the realities of a world-based economy and then give ourselves the tools necessary to not only be competitive but to excel in this, the new marketplace."

As far as the local, tourism-based economy, Larcade said that last year Canada incurred a $33 billion tourism deficit. This is the difference between the amount of tourism dollars spent in Canada and the amount spent by Canadians in other countries.

"This is the critical stage for resorts to survive," she said. "If we don't learn how to train our people, we won't have this opportunity."

Larcade suggested that businesses should try and take advantage of current changes in the Canada's economic and political situation. While the Meech Lake Accord, free trade with the United States and the government's proposed Goods and Services Tax (GST) are usually referred to in negative terms, Larcade said businesses who use the changes to their advantage "will reap huge financial rewards as a result of being able to look to the future."

"Training and education are the most effective business tools that are available to us," she said. With the federal and provincial governments committing $43 million to Community Industrial Training process alone, "we owe it to ourselves as business people, and to the communities we represent, to utilize this pool of available training dollars in the most effective way possible," said Larcade.

"This can only be done if we all work together for the benefit of our community and local economy, by indentifying and addressing those areas of most pressing need, and that need is largely represented by the people who live and work here," she said.

"An educated, enlightened and informed workforce is invariably a more productive and competitive workforce."

Joyce Potts, left, was given the CITC's Chairperson's Award by Anne Larcade who occupied the chair during the past year. Larcade commended Potts' dedication to the committee when presenting her with the award on Wednesday night.

Managing by caring is a key to success

Businesses striving for success should learn the art of managing by caring, says management consultant Lynn Anderson.

"A bankrupt business is one that has stopped caring," Anderson told the members of the Bancroft-Haliburton Community Industrial Training Committee at their annual meeting.

Anderson suggested several ways in which employers can liven up the work place and increase job satisfaction for staff.

"Happy people make fewer mistakes, are more alert and work more efficiently," she said. "Happy employees promote customer service."

One of Anderson's suggestions was to let employees make up their own imaginative job titles. She said one of the most creative job titles she's ever heard of was 'Vice-President of Enthusiasm'.

She also suggested bringing a Polaroid camera into the workplace and letting employees snap pictures of each other either doing something well, or making a mistake.

On a more serious note, Anderson said employers should try and involve their staff in the overall operation of the business by holding strategic planning sessions.

Another method of increasing staff satisfaction is to let people switch job roles so they can experience different aspects of the business, said Anderson.

Anderson touched on some of the characteristics that people appreciate in their employers. One of the most important qualities a boss can have, she said, is a sense of humour.

"It helps manage stress," she said. "A laugh a day keeps bankruptcy away." Other important qualities include being understanding, appreciative and friendly.

"It all fits under management by caring," said Anderson. "It's not as difficult as it sounds to manage a business by caring."

"You will hire people most like you. With that thought in mind, how would you most like to be treated?"

The list of ways that employers can liven up the work place and enhance the job atmosphere, "is as long as you want to make it," said Anderson. She said people are at their jobs for half of their lives, so "why not make it as pleasant as possible?"

The Stanhope Firefighters' Association Jaws of Life fundraising drive received a major boost last week when the Rotary Club of Minden contributed $1,000 to the effort. Living Forests . . . Giving Forests

The theme for National Forest Week, Living Forests . . . Giving Forests, springs from the fact that Canada's forests have given Canadians a unique global identity. All Canadians are influenced by our greatest natural asset — our living forests.

Canada's forests are much more than the backbone of our economy. While providing jobs for almost a million Canadians, forests give us more than employment opportunities. Our forests store carbon and through photosynthesis, produce the oxygen we need to survive. Forests stabilize the soil, preventing erosion. Forests provide essential habitat for hundreds of plant and animal species, and thousands of insect species. Forests conserve rainfall, slowly releasing water into streams or the atmosphere. These are but a few of the important functions the forests freely give.

Canada's forests have inspired Canadians for thousands of years, and with Canada's growing awareness, will continue to inspire future generations. All Canadians use the forest one way or another, from the paper you are reading to the air you breathe. It is our responsibility, as stewards of this great resource, to ensure Canada's greatest living asset, our forests, continue to give Canadians our heritage.

More than 40 youngsters turned out to The Soda Club's opening night on Friday. Organized by the Stanhope Recreation Committee, The Soda Club is a place where kids can go to be with others their own age and get involved in a wide range of activities.

with others their own age. It's wholesome and they're not hanging out in the arcade."

Audrey Fountain of Maple Lake brought her grandson and found the club to be reminiscent of a similar concept in West Guilford where she grew up. "We had dances every Friday," she said. "Oh, we had a wonderful time and I think this is a great idea for the kids."

The youngsters were keen on the club. While some milled about shyly, most delved into games, music and the snackbar. A few brave souls took to the dance floor; some just greeted friends and talked.

"It's cool," said Dawn Mole.

Colleen Timberus agreed. "It's a great place to get to know other teenagers your age." When asked what she mean by "other teenagers," she said simply, "You know—guys."

The Soda Club meets the first Friday of every month from 8 p.m. until midnight. Admission is $1 per person. A snackbar sells pop and munchies at regular prices. The club is non-profit and the admission money goes toward games and activities.

"We'd like to put together some outings—maybe a bowling night or a corn roast," said McGuire. Depending on the club's popularity, it may meet more often than once a month. It may also split into two age groups. "Maybe 11 to 13 and then 14 and up. We'll wait and see what the kids want to do."

The Recreation Committee wants input and ideas from kids and parents alike. They want the Soda Club to be a place where kids want to go. McGuire is hoping some carpools can be arranged as the club progresses.

"Parents must realize how important a night like this is for their kids," she said. They were off to a fine start on Friday. One parent even volunteered to become a Soda Club supervisor.

For more information on The Soda Club, contact Thelda McGuire at 489-3028.

Organ donors honoured

Minden resident Audrey Northey recently attended a very special memorial service held in Ottawa.

The service, held at Christ Church Cathedral on April 22, was in honour of those individuals who had donated their organs in order to help others.

The message about the importance of organ donation has special meaning to Northey, her husband Les has undergone two life-saving liver transplants.

The event was organized by a 57-year-old Nepean woman, Pam Johnson who was the recipient of a donated liver two years ago. The memorial service was Johnson's way of honouring the person who had donated the liver she received and allowing other transplant patients to do the same.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney attended the service, and his wife Mila participated by reading one of the passages.

After the service Northey had the opportunity to speak with the Mulroneys and they said the event had made them much more aware on the need for people to sign organ donor cards.

Northey says many people are uncomfortable with the idea of allowing their organs to be donated in the event of their death.

"What I'm finding is they are not aware of the procedure when organs are donated and are reluctant to sign donor cards," she said. "Their biggest fear is that organs will be taken from them before everything has been done to keep them alive."

But Northey says that organ donation is not even considered until every possible attempt has been made to save the donors life.

At the memorial service, Northey says family members of donors said knowing that organs had been donated eased the pain of the death.

Multiple Organ Retrieval Exchange (MORE) is the agency which coordinates organ donations and tries to match up donated organs with possible recipients.

Although organ donors' identities are anonymous, patients who receive a donated organ can write letters to the families of organ donors through MORE.

Northey says she and her husband wrote to the families of the individuals who donated livers for both of Les' operations.

Les had his first liver transplant operation in September, 1988 but his body totally rejected the liver after four months. The second transplant operation took place in February, 1989 and after a year the treatment has remained a success.

Northey says that if Les hadn't had the transplant, he was expected to live for only a couple of months.

Although organ transplants have saved thousands of lives in Canada, a shortage of available donor organs keeps many more people waiting for transplant operations.

It's for this reason that events like the Ottawa memorial service are being held to raise awareness about organ donation and to try to encourage people to sign the organ donor cards on their driver's licenses.

Northey says the memorial service organizers are hoping to make it an annual event and that she would like to attend.

Archie Stouffer Band a hit in North Hastings

On April 25, the Archie Stouffer Elementary School Grade 8 band travelled to North Hastings to participate in a solo and band competition.

The local musicians were in top form and came home with nine first place, four second place and two third place finishes.

Among the prizes earned by the Archie Stouffer students was the 'Silver Sceptor' for placing first in the Grade 8 band competition with their version of Beethoven's 'Theme from the Fifth Symphony'.

The following is a list of results from the competition:

Cheri Rivard - first, and Sarah Newson - second, in the flute solo competition,

Heather McGann - first in the bass clarinet solo competition,

Melissa Grozelle - first in the alto saxophone solo competition,

Damon Smith - first, and Rhys Gray - second, in the trumpet solo competition,

Keith MacKenzie - first in the trombone solo competition,

The Archie Stouffer band - first in the band competition,

Archie Stouffer second and third in the Grade 8 ensemble competition,

Laura Hopkins and Dawn Moore - first, Cheri Rivard and Sarah Newson - second, and Jennifer Oitment and Lisa Ranson - third in the woodwind duet competition,

Max Senitt - first in the percussion solo competition,

Amanda Woods - first in the glockenspiel solo competition, and Rhys Gray and Damon Smith - first in the brass duet competition.

Congratulations to all participating students.

Study of population helps health study

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

A demographic study of Haliburton County has been added to the information collected by the steering committee studying the area's long-term health needs.

At last Tuesday's meeting, health planning analyst Anne Gallant presented committee members with a profile of the county's population trends. Committee member Doug Campbell provided the members with a study outlining the distribution of population within the county.

By looking at population distribution, Gallant says the committee will be able to see from which areas residents are leaving the county to receive health care.

For instance people in Dorset tend to go to Huntsville, and residents in Cardiff and Bicroft tend to go to Bancroft or Belleville.

Included in the information were some projections of population growth in the county based on the 1986 federal census. Gallant said that identifying population growth is important in planning for Haliburton's future health, social services and housing needs.

"If we don't have these projections, we're missing a piece of the base," she said.

The population profile turned up some interesting facts about Haliburton county.

For instance more than 21 per cent of people aged 15 years or older have a Grade Nine education or less. This compares with a provincial average of 14.6 per cent.

This statistic is important to the committee because level of education affects income which is reflected in the ability to purchase housing and the need for social services.

The population study also found that the growth in the county's population is due to new people moving in to the area rather than a natural increase from having more births than deaths.

"By and large the population increase is due to people retiring to the county," says Gallant. This influx of seniors will have an influence on the health care issues confronting the committee.

If people retire to the county in good health at 55 to 60 years old, in five years their health status, and needs, might change, says Gallant. And in 10 years, their needs might change again.

When planning health services, Gallant says the committee has to look at what needs to be in place to deal with pressures on the system in the future.

Gymnasts fourth in county

by Carol Moffatt

An outstanding team effort by the Kinmount and Burnt River grade 5 and 6 students resulted in a fourth-place overall standing in Victoria County's gymnastics meet on Friday, April 20.

The 17th Annual Victoria County Elementary School Girl's Gymnastics Meet, held in Lindsay, included 14 schools. Competition consisted of floor and vault routines.

Individual effort by Kinmount's grade 6 student Pamela Stender resulted in fifth place overall. Her efforts also gave her Victoria County's bronze medal in the floor routine and a 10th-place ribbon on the straddle vault.

Barbara Johnston and Jolene Kelly, also in grade 6, each put in fine efforts, achieving sixth and 10th place in their floor routines, respectively.

Grade 7 student Jennifer Stender placed fourth on the handspring vault. Amy Dudman and Julie Windrum both placed sixth on the vault in the grade 4 and under category.

Kinmount-Burnt River Gymnastics Team brought home several ribbons and one medal in the 17th Annual Victoria County Elementary School Girl's Gymnastics Meet. Members are (top) Jennifer Stender, Christina Windrum, Cori Barkwell, Tiffany Newman and Jennifer Hastings. (centre) Pamela Stender, Jolene Kelly, Bobbijo Barr, Suellen Crego and Melissa Munro. (bottom) Julie Windrum, Amy Dudman and Julie Stender. Absent are Barbara Johnston and Robynne Kilby.

The committee is also proceeding with an inventory of health, social, and housing services that already exist in the area.

Questionnaires were mailed out to the various agencies in the county and Chairman Maureen Dikun says there was a 75 per cent response.

From the information on the completed questionnaires, Gallant says a profile of each agency will be developed. All the profiles will then be put together into a single package and distributed to the various agencies.

Each profile will include a concise description of the service the agency provides, and eligibility requirements for receiving that service.

The profiles will be useful when an agency wants to refer a client with special needs and wants to know where they should call.

The committee is in the process of setting up five focus groups to deal with specific issues relating to the long-term health care study.

These focus groups, comprised of members of the committee, will meet with special interest groups around the county to hear their concerns.

The first focus group will meet with members of municipal councils, the second will meet with area physicians, the third will meet with informal care givers, such as spouses, the fourth focus group will meet with senior citizens and physically challenged individuals and the fifth group will meet with service providers.

Also the committee has set the dates and locations of the three open houses that will be held. The open houses will give area residents a chance to learn more about the various services available in the area, and also to talk to committee members about the health care study.

The open houses will be organized with a series of displays set up by participating agencies such as the Victorian Order of Nurses, Home Care and people involved in non-profit housing.

The first open house is being held on June 21 at the Lloyd Watson Centre in Wilberforce from 2 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The second one is being held in Minden, with location and times still to be arranged, the third open house will be held in Haliburton village at the Legion from 2:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

All these initiatives will provide the committee with the necessary information to complete a long-term directional plan for the county's health, social services and housing needs.

It's expected the study won't be completed until next September or October.

Local teachers, students help 'Focus on Forests'

Something new is happening in Ontario schools. Since last November, primary schoolchildren have been drawing, touching, measuring and singing about trees. And high school students are studying the effects of acid rain on trees and planning how to fight a forest fire.

It's all part of Focus on Forests, a forestry education program developed by the Ministry of Natural Resources in co-operation with Forestry Canada through the Canada-Ontario Forest Resource Development Agreement.

"Focus on Forests is the first major forestry education program for Ontario schools and it's designed to meet a real interest," says Natural Resources Minister Lyn McLeod. "With our growing urban populations, many students' opportunities to explore the complexities of forest ecology and forest management are limited."

Frank Oberle, Canada's Minister of Forestry, is also enthusiastic about the program. "There has been a need for greater public awareness of the complex forest ecosystem we have. Focus on Forests will fill this need in Ontario's schools. Students will have a stronger appreciation for Canada's most valuable natural resource and the complexity of its management."

Focus on Forests aims to increase children's understanding of forests and forest management. It was developed specifically to help teachers incorporate forestry education into their existing curriculum.

"I think many teachers will welcome this program," says Susan Gesner, MNR's education co-ordinator. She reports that the ministry's public information centre was receiving about ten calls a day from teachers and students wanting information about forests.

Focus on Forests is designed to help those teachers who have little formal training in science. It brings a forest perspective to a wide range of subjects, from science and geography to art, music and math. "One of the major benefits of the program is that it can be incorporated into many parts of the curriculum," says Dave Mowat, a high school biology teacher in Haliburton who helped write Focus on Forests.

The program emerged as part of MNR's efforts to increase forestry awareness and is modelled on the highly successful national education program Project WILD.

Project WILD uses wildlife to teach things like reading, writing, math and science to grades kindergarten to six. "Teachers love Project WILD because it's easy to use and fits the curriculum," says Gesner. "And students love it because it's fun."

Focus on Forests is available in both English and French. The primary/junior guide is an interdisciplinary activity guide that includes stories, games, and teaching strategies. The intermediate/senior resource manual covers such topics as forest products, reforestation, forest protection and multiple use of forest resources.

Sixty-five teachers throughout the province field-tested the draft version of Focus on Forests during the 1988-89 school year. The teachers' comments were used in producing the final draft.

National Forest Week

Penny Obee, who teaches science to Grade 7 and 8 students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden, was one teacher who tried the program. "The kids received it enthusiastically," she says. "I'm definitely going to go on using it wherever I can fit it into the curriculum."

Teachers or other youth leaders wishing to obtain a Focus on Forests guide must participate in an MNR workshop for program users. The ministry also offers leadership workshops to train individuals to deliver workshops to users.

The first Focus on Forests leadership workshop was held last November 2, 3 and 4 at the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre in Dorset. Since then, the ministry has trained close to 200 workshop leaders, half of them teachers and youth group leaders, who are now conducting user workshops in their communities. By this spring, almost 600 educators across Ontario will be trained to deliver the Focus on Forests program in their classrooms.

For more information on upcoming Focus on Forests workshops, contact Toni Frisby, Forestry Education Co-ordinator, Ministry of Natural Resources, Forest Resources Group, 258 Queen Street E., Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario P6A 5N5, (705)945-6725 or your local MNR district office.

ROAR! Kinmount Lions Charter Night

by Carol Moffatt

The Kinmount and District Lions Club celebrated its Charter Night on Saturday night. Two hundred and sixty people attended the function at the Kinmount Arena, including MPPs John Eakins and Jim Pollock and MP Bill Scott.

The club's charter was officially approved on Jan. 22. There are 27 members, including seven women.

The post-dinner ceremonies were impressive. The members of parliament each expressed their pride in the club and extended wishes of success to its members. Pollock presented Lions Club President Frank Thom with a Canadian flag. Eakins presented a provincial flag and Scott presented a portrait of Queen Elizabeth II. Eakins also read a congratulatory letter from Ontario Premier David Peterson.

Past District Governor Ernie Stefaniuk swore in the Kinmount members while Past Department District Governor Dale St. John lit seven candles to symbolize the Lions' objectives.

Governor Harold Harrison presented the Charter to President Frank Thom and members of district Lions clubs presented Thom with gifts for the club.

The gifts included a Lions Club banner, a speaker's podium, a stand of world flags, and several Lions pins for the President, Secretary and Treasurer. The pins belong to the club and will be passed down from officer to officer. As well, each Kinmount member received official Lions pin signifying membership.

The ceremonies closed with a few words from both President Frank Thom and Vice-President Don Haines. The club has yet to establish what it's going to get involved with. "We've been so busy getting organized for (Charter Night) that we haven't had time," said Don Haines.

Frank Thom said the club is still in the process of setting up and establishing a budget. "We've got some ideas. It's early yet, but it won't be long before we get going on a few things," he said.

Lions Ernie Stefaniuk and Dale St. John flank Kinmount and District Lions President Frank Thom with Kinmount's new Charter. It was officially presented to the club at a dinner reception on Saturday night.

DRUNK DRIVING KILLS!

Will alcohol claim you as yet another victim of escalating statistics? Each year, the scene is the same. Friends gather together, and will have a drink or two...or three. Then it's time to go home. Whether around the block or long distance, the effect of even one drink makes you a threat to yourself and others! Reflexes become sluggish and judgement is impaired, in short, you become a potential killer as soon as you get behind that wheel. This season, if you drink, use your head. Don't drive. If a friend has one too many, encourage him to find another way home. Don't let your celebrating lead you down a dead end street...permanently!

Dan Alton and Alec Little were at Hyland Crest bright and early Saturday morning to plant a permanent, outdoor Christmas tree on the lawn. The tree, and equipment were donated by Francis Walker. Alton and Little donated their time.

New program to train nurses for committees

The Ministry of Health is providing $228,000 to the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario to provide training to assist nurses in their new role on hospital committees.

In making the announcement, Health Minister El-Inor Caplan said the funding was a further example of her commitment to give nurses a greater voice in the everyday operation of hospitals.

At the same time, the minister also announced the appointments of two nursing policy advisors.

They are Pamela Hubley, Nursing Retention Co-ordinator at the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto and Otalene Shaw, employed at North Bay Civic Hospital.

In her position at Sick Children's, Ms Hubley acts as an advocate for staff nurses and is concerned with attracting and keeping nurses at the hospital. Ms Shaw is chairperson of the Ontario

Association of Registered Nursing Assistants Regional Council of Nipissing.

The policy advisors will assist Pat Bethune, who was appointed the provincial nursing co-ordinator by the ministry last fall. One of the co-ordinator's first tasks was to work with the RNAO to develop the workshops for nurses appointed to hospital committees.

The establishment of these three key positions is part of the five-year $15 million program to improve nursing recruitment and retention announced by the ministry last October.

The RNAO will use the grant to help nurses gain the skills and knowledge that will help those appointed to senior hospital committees.

The aim is to present 22 training sessions across the province to 30 nurses at each location, for a total of 660 participants.

Thrilled by talent

Editor:

I wish to say a great big "Thank You" to the students and staff of Archie Stouffer School.

The Talent Night performance they gave this past Thursday evening was excellent. It was obvious that everyone had worked hard to put on a top notch show. I was thrilled to witness the many talents our children are capable of.

Thank you Grade 4, 5 and 6 students for the wonderful evening. Each of you did a great job and I hope to see you perform again soon.

Thank you school staff for seeing the possibilities in your students and for giving that extra little bit to bring out the best in our children. Your efforts are appreciated.

Barb Lester,
Minden

P.S. I loved the April 30/90 editorial cartoon.

It's always tempting...but

It's always tempting to simply jump in the boat and go, but if you take just a moment to ensure safety, you might avert a tragedy. Remember, the minimum requirements for vessels less than 5½ metres in length is one safety jacket for each person on board, two oars with rowlocks or two paddles, some type of signalling device, a class B-1 fire extinguisher if there's an inboard motor or a fixed tank, and a bailer.

Flight Paramedics Mike Prokopowicz and Kevin Madigan stand beside Bandage I, a Skorsky 76 Mark II. The $3-million helicopter is one of five ambulance aircraft in Ontario. 'Condition Critical '90' allowed the media to meet members of Sunnybrook Hospital's Trauma Team and provided an in-depth look behind the scenes of one of Toronto's major trauma units.

CONDITION CRITICAL

You're in good hands when Bandage 1 lifts off

by Carol Moffatt

More than a thousand times a year an air ambulance is dispatched to pick up a sick or injured person who cannot be sufficiently treated by the local hospital. Last year more than 25 people were transferred by air ambulance from Minden and Haliburton to Toronto area hospitals.

"We are the eyes, ears and hands of the physician," said Bryan Justice, Sunnybrook Hospital's Air Ambulance Director. Justice was commenting on the work performed by air ambulance personnel during a media day at Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital last Wednesday.

On an average day the helicopter based at Buttonville airport, just north of Toronto, is dispatched two or three times. However, come the summer season that number doubles. Each air ambulance aircraft is manned by two pilots and two paramedics. The inside of the helicopter, appropriately named Bandage I, looks like a small operating room. In fact, the equipment inside is equivalent to that in an emergency operating room, but on a smaller scale.

"Fifty four percent of the calls we go on are trauma calls," said Rob Theriault, a Flight Paramedic based in Buttonville. To reach a victim the pilots will land Bandage I wherever they have to—the road, a field, someone's driveway. They do what they can to beat 'the Golden Hour'—if they can reach, resuscitate and stabilize a victim within the first hour after an accident the chance of death or permanent injury is significantly diminished.

Ambulance aircraft are based in four other locations throughout northern (more on page 30)

Cutting response time adds to chances of survival

by Carol Moffatt

Stephen Oldham was no stranger to motorcycles. He'd been riding motocross bikes for years when he decided to make the move to a street bike. On April 1 he and a friend decided to take the new Honda 750 cc for a spin.

He wasn't used to the weight of the bigger bike. And with a few beers in his system he couldn't control the bike when he hit the leftover winter sand in the street. They spun out and his friend was thrown clear. But Stephen stayed with the bike.

Oldham was about to go on the ride of his life aboard Bandage 1.

When Oldham's skidding motorcycle hit the curb, his left leg was virtually severed from the knee down. For the first time he wasn't wearing a helmet. He hit a telephone pole, fractured his cheek and sustained bruising to the inner part of his brain.

Stephen was sent from Markham/Stouffville Hospital to Sunnybrook by air ambulance within about 35 minutes. He remained in a coma for a week and was semi-conscious for almost two more. The first contact he made was with his eyes. A nurse asked him to blink if he was in pain and he did.

Stephen is talking now, albeit slowly and awkwardly. Joanne Banfield, the Neurosurgical Ward Nursing Director said Stephen is making great progress. But he was incredibly lucky—he could be dead. And that's how Stephen's family sees it.

Dave Oldham, Stephen's father, praised the trauma unit and the air ambulance service. "We don't know what might have happened if he couldn't get (to Sunnybrook) as fast as he did," he said.

Unfortunately, the few beers that Stephen had before driving were a factor in the accident. He wasn't drunk but the alcohol impaired his judgement just enough that he couldn't react quickly when he needed to. He'll be ready to go to a rehabilitative hospital in a few weeks.

Without the lower half of his left leg he'll have to learn to walk again. Joanne Banfield said it's too early to tell what else he may have to learn again.

Fourteen-year-old Jen Oldham and seventeen-year-old Jayson Oldham are also learning to deal with their brother's accident. "Like people always say, you never think it can happen to your family," said Jen. "Kids think they're ten feet tall and bulletproof," said Mr. Oldham. "If you're going to tell them anything, please, don't drink and drive."

Jayson, virtually silent until now, added, "Never mind please, just dont."

Teamwork, communication save lives

Ontario in Sudbury, Timmins, Thunder Bay and Sioux Lookout. If the dispatched craft is immediately available, it can be in the air within four and a half minutes. The pilots and paramedics are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The average aircraft costs about $3 million. It costs $1,200 per hour to run each aircraft. Justice, however, said the cost is easily justified. "If we can prevent just one person from spending untold months in a hospital or rehabilitative environment, the money saved pays for the cost of the program."

After receiving vital treatment from paramedics, an airlifted patient goes into a Trauma Room. The Trauma Team is comprised of a team leader, residents from anesthesia, general surgery neurosurgery, orthopedic surgery and radiology as well as three nurses, a radiology technician and a respiratory therapist. In the Trauma Room, any problem can immediately be attended to by a specialist.

From there a patient will go to whatever ward best suits the injuries sustained, be that the Critical Care Unit, the Spinal Cord Injuries Unit or the Neuro Intensive Care Unit. An improving patient will eventually go to B5, the Trauma Ward, which is the last stop before discharge. From there a patient's condition dictates whether the next stop is home or a rehabilitative hospital.

Last July a program was implemented that expedites the admitting procedure for patients airlifted from out of town. The Integrated Trauma Program makes it easier for a patient to get a bed in the already overcrowded Toronto and area hospitals.

The referring doctor calls a central number and gives the dispatcher details of the patient. Through computer integration the central dispatcher knows which hospitals are open and accepting new patients. The call is forwarded to the hospital's Trauma Team Leader who decides if that hospital is appropriate for the case in question. The Trauma Team Leader either accepts the patient or arranges for a transfer to a more suitable hospital. When the destination is decided, the air ambulance is dispatched as soon as possible.

"Communication is the important factor and the Integrated Trauma Program helps community doctors make the right decision," said Dr. Giuseppe Pagliarello, the program Co-ordinator. When access to a Toronto hospital is denied, the program looks for beds in Hamilton or Kingston as alternatives.

And while a bed cannot always be guaranteed, discussion with a Trauma Team Leader is. Patients can sometimes be treated at a community hospital with over-the-phone help from a more experienced doctor. When a bed becomes available and the patient can be airlifted to the better-equipped hospital, the receiving doctor already knows the parameters of the case.

TRAUMA

Most accidents occur in May

by Carol Moffatt

A trauma patient is defined as having a severe injury to a single body system (i.e. head or chest) or injuries involving more than one body system. Seventy per cent of all trauma patients are brought into Toronto from outlying areas like Minden and Haliburton whose hospitals cannot effectively deal with such devastating injuries.

Sunnybrook Health Science Centre in Toronto has a major trauma unit which includes a spinal cord injuries unit. They see 500 trauma patients each year and that number is rising steadily.

Seventy per cent of all trauma patients are males between 30 and 35 years of age. Statistically they are the fastest drivers, the biggest risk takers. Motor vehicle accidents produce the most victims, over 75 per cent. These accidents include cars, trucks, motorcycles and the pedestrians that get hit by them. Of all trauma patients admitted to Sunnybrook, one third have consumed alcohol prior to their accidents and half of those are twice the legal limit.

Spinal cord injuries are the main cause of paralysis. Forty eight per cent of spinal cord injury victims are under the age of 30. Forty five per cent are caused by car accidents and 17 per cent are caused by sports, recreation and diving accidents.

Diving accidents don't necessarily mean a foolish dive into a shallow lake. Most swimming pool accidents happen when the diver smashes into the slope to the shallow end. In a lake or river it's impossible to tell if the last storm left a log or rock where it's been smooth sand for years.

Ninety five percent of trauma injuries are 'blunt traumas', where there is little or no apparent external damage. 'Penetrating traumas' consist of knife or gunshot wounds, or any severe injury which penetrates the body.

Most trauma accidents occur in May. Sunnybrook admits an average of 50 patients in May and over 30 each month through the summer until the fall.

Run for your life

Flight Paramedics make the dash from Sunnybrook Hospital's helipad to a waiting ambulance in a mock emergency at 'Condition Critical '90' media day. Air ambulance personnel provide vital services that save dozens of lives each year and dramatically reduce the number of permanent injuries sustained by trauma victims.

'Make the good times last' with fewer risks, less alcohol

by Carol Moffatt

Make the good times last. That's the slogan of Paarry, a program designed by Sunnybrook Hospital in 1986.

Paarry is an acronym for Prevent Alcohol and Risk-Related Trauma in Youth.

It was designed to raise awareness and recognition of risk behaviours that can result in injury. It is an outreach program, a unique sharing of short- and long-term consequences of risk-taking from a hospital point of view.

Between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Fridays, high school students aged 16 and over go to Sunnybrook and follow the path of an injured person through the hospital. They see what happened to the victim, what treatment was used and why. They follow the victim's path through to rehabilitation and are divided into subgroups that examine specific patient-care areas.

Students are given demonstrations about spinal cord injuries and brain damage. They learn the role of risk-taking and alcohol use and discuss alternate behaviours. Volunteer participants find out what it's like to wear a neck brace, to use a wheelchair or to wear the halo vest that victims of broken necks wear for three months. They also learn the long-term impact of severe injury on people their own age.

Students leave the hospital with an awareness of the potential impact of risk-taking on the victims and the risk-takers. They are encouraged to change attitudes and behaviour and become aware of their responsibility to themselves and to others.

They learn they are all the "someone else" who terrible things can happen to.

Canine disease is spreading

Canine heartworm disease, a potentially fatal infection that threatens more and more dogs each year, continues to spread in Ontario because of a general lack of awareness of the nature and severity of the disease, Dr. Larry Wilder, spokesperson for the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association, said.

"There are approximately

1 million dog owners in Ontario, and unfortunately many of them do not realize how easily their pets can be infected with heartworm disease," Wilder said. "They also don't know that there are simple methods of prevention that can protect their dog from this disease."

Heartworm disease is caused by a parasite which is transmitted by mosquitoes. When a contaminated mosquito bites a dog, it leaves behind microscopic heartworm larvae that migrate through the tissue and, after a few months, travel to the heart where they mature. Heartworm, up to 35 cm long, impair the flow of blood and cause damage to the heart, lungs and liver. In some cases damage to the internal organs is so extensive that the condition may be fatal.

Mature heartworms reproduce new larvae which can be picked up by a mosquito and transmitted to another dog to start the cycle again. As a result, an infected dog becomes a reservoir for the infection, putting other unprotected dogs at risk.

"Dog owners should first contact their veterinarian to know if heartworm disease is a problem in their area," Dr. Wilder said. "If it is, the veterinarian will provide all the necessary information regarding simple prevention medication that can effectively eliminate any threat of heartworm disease and ultimately reduce the risk for other dogs."

Don't be shocked by heating pads

by Doreen Hawman

The Canadian Standards Association and D & H Corporation are asking owners of Solex "Therapad" heating pads to inspect them for two possible assembly deficiencies. Either one of these deficiencies could be a potential shock hazard. The heat setting indicator of the switch should be inserted fully to fit flush to the switch body. In addition, the white vinyl pouch, enclosing the heating element, should be checked to ensure it is fully sealed on all edges and at the pad's power supply cord entry location. If the heat setting indicator of the switch is not fully inserted or the vinyl pouch is not properly sealed, please return it to Riclam Agency, 451 Millway Dr., Concord, Ontario, Canada L4K 3V6 for replacement. If you require assistance in determining if your heating pad has these two problems, please call the manufacturer's number (416)660-3166 (you may call collect). Note: Warming pads manufactured after November 1989 are not affected by this recall. Each pad is marked with a manufacturing date.

If you have any questions or require assistance, contact your nearest Information

Centre. In Haliburton, the centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 457-2733.

If you reside in the Minden area, the centre, located in the Municipal Building Milne Street, is open Monday and Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 286-4100. Anyone living outside the toll-free area please call collect.

News from the Staunworth apartments

"Many make a household but only one makes a Home."

Let us remember "Our Mother" this month of May.

The April meeting of our Residents Social Club was held in the Lounge with 12 member present. A dinner-out was discussed; our new tenant Doris Moore was welcomed with the hope that she enjoys her life here; and a letter was to be forwarded to our Directors re a certain matter of importance to our Club.

To our April birthday residents Sylvia H., Mark V., Carrie V., and Lillian D., we wish you all, — 'friendly faces, warm hellos, affection that sincerely shows.'

A very sincere welcome is extended to our new residents, Doris Moore, Marion and Frank Fisher. We trust you will enjoy your life with us here. Also we are glad to welcome more of our snowbirds back from the Sunny South, namely Mabel and Len Trodd. Mabel tells me that she enjoyed better health after being under doctor's care before she left for their holidays.

Lillian Davidson was taken to Bracebridge Hospital for consultation and care. We are glad she has returned home to recuperate. We wish her speedy recovery.

On April 26, thirty, or more, volunteers and friends visited with us to celebrate "Volunteers' Week" set aside by the Haliburton County Home Support Services each year. It is chosen as an opportunity to show appreciation to, and with, all volunteers for their interest, concern, and help among the Seniors of our County. The committee in charge of this visit were, — Donna Pacey, Executive Director of the Home Support Services programs; Adele Barnes President of the Drop-in-centre activities; and Alice Martin, also board member. We enjoyed their visit and the goodies prepared and shared by the ladies mentioned. We wish the Home Support and their several programs every success and thank them for them for the available services so willingly offered. It is said that—"Most of the good things in this world are done by tired people."

A note of interest to our residents from our secretary Barbara Sisson,— "We are considering RECYCLING in our Court. Hector is very concered, as is Barbara." (By the way, Barbara will add a note of interest occasionally with mine.)

An overheard conversation went thus:

"My wife says, if you don't chuck Golf, I'll leave you."

"That's too bad."

"Yes, I'll miss her."

So, between golfing, Meech Lake, GST and mosquitoes, we are looking forward to a very busy and confused summer. Don't you agree?

See you,
M.H.

Musical pot pourri delights audience

Music and dancing were the order of the evening Thursday as students from the intermediate grades at Archie Stouffer Elementary School presented their annual Performance Night. Featuring the students of grades 4, 5, and 6, the evening attracted an auditorium full of appreciative parents, relatives and friends.

The evening included: a selection of songs from the musical Oliver as sung by the grade 5 choir; folk dancing by 4B class; French folk songs sung by 4A class; three selections played on recorders by 4C students; a combined choir presentation; and a selection of environmental rap songs performed by the grade 6 class.

While all the presentations were enthusiastically received by the audience, the rap songs attracted a great deal of interest. Written by the students, the raps touched on numerous areas of environmental concerns and concluded with raps based on the classes' VIP (Values, Influences and Peers) program. These topics included saying "no" to drugs, vandalism, smoking and alcohol abuse.

CANADIAN JEWELLERS ASSOCIATION

The high school track and field team launched their usual assault on the standings at the Kawartha West Track and Field meet this year.

The large Haliburton contingent earned 29 first place finishes, 32 second place finishes and 37 third place finishes. When the dust finally settled at LCVI in Lindsay, 54 Haliburton competitors had earned the right to travel to Peterborough for the Kawartha meet this Thursday.

The following is a complete list of athletes who qualified for Peterborough, their event, standing and performance:

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally.

They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Seniors gear up for competition

by Norma Hodgson

Once again the seniors of Haliburton are getting geared for action in the Haliburton County Senior Games, which were officially opened April 20 at the Haliburton County Home Support Services luncheon in the Stanhope Community Hall. The Senior Games banner was brought in by Norma Crewson and Harold Bebbington, both wearing the distinctive Haliburton tartan hats and vests. Harry Hodgson, chairperson of the Haliburton Senior Games introduced Reeve Harry Davis, who declared the Summer Games to be officially open on behalf of Stanhope Township and Haliburton County. The games were blessed by Pastor Brian Plouffe.

Elva Robinson gave a brief history of the Senior Games since they were initiated in Haliburton. The concept of seniors getting together for fun, friendly competition and social interaction began in Alberta and quickly spread to the other provinces. The provincial competition, Actifest '88, was held in Brampton and was a tremendous success. Over 1200 seniors representing the 37 districts of Ontario participated in the three days of competition. This year Actifest '90 will be held in London over a four-day period, August 7 to 11. Haliburton expects to have good representation.

The games will begin on May 14 and run to June 14 with venues throughout the county. The schedule is as follows:

Contract Bridge - May 14 in West Guilford. Euchre May 15 Haliburton Legion auditorium. Darts May 16 Haliburton Legion club room. Cribbage May 18 Kinmount Legion. 5-Pin bowling May 22 Carnarvon. Duplicate Bridge May 24 HCHSS Drop-In Centre. Lawn Bowling May 28 Minden Lawn Bowling club. Horseshoes May 30 Gooderham. Walking June 1 Haliburton Secondary School. Triathlon (Ball Throw & Walk June 1 Haliburton Secondary School.

Swimming and Triathlon swim June 5 PineStone Inn. Tennis June 4 Stanhope Tennis Court. Shuffleboard June 6 Minden Shuffleboard Club. Golf June 11 Blairhampton Golf Course.

All adults 55 plus are invited to participate. No expertise is required. The community games provide an opportunity for friendly competition and social interaction. The three top winners or teams will compete with the winners from the Muskoka community games in the District 11 play-offs to be held from June 19 to 27. Gold medal winners from these events will be competing in Actifest '90 in London.

The Haliburton County Senior Games closing luncheon will be held on June 14 in the Haliburton Legion. Registration forms for the games are available at the Drop-In Centre in Haliburton weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and in Minden on Mondays and Tuesdays at the Haliburton County Information Centre in the Minden Municipal Building from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. No registrations will be accepted after May 7. For more information please contact Sherron Sisson at 457-2171.

Remember - June is Senior Citizens month.

Senior curls receive awards

The Minden Senior Curling Club wound up the 1989-1990 season with their annual awards banquet held at the Crowe's Nest on Saturday, April 28 with 136 members enjoying a delicious roast beef dinner served by St. Paul's A.C.W. Following the dinner, trophies and prizes were awarded to the winning teams of the three leagues.

The Bruce Scribner trophy for the men's league, first half, went to the team of: Stan Hill, Ken Walsh, John Thomas and Rowland Sedgwick. The Ed and Peggy Pettinger trophy for the men's league, second half, was won by the team of Sid Rowe, Bill Milford, Ross Codlin and Ralph Palmer.

Mrs. Grace Coburn and her daughter Caroline presented the Lorne Coburn Memorial trophy for the ladies first half to the team of Joyce Wiltshire, Lois Adamson, Ursula Dymott and Gladys Marquardt.

The Eric Hardman Memorial trophy for the ladies second half was presented by Mrs. Betty Hardman to the team of Joyce Wiltshire, Molly McCarthy, Marg Gartley and Gladys Marquardt.

The Harold Morgan trophy for the mixed league, first half, was won by the team of Earl McDonald, Chris Dollo, John Thomas and Jerry Palmer. Ruby Kennedy presented the Ralph and Ruby Kennedy trophy for the mixed league second half which went to the team of Bob Wiltshire, Pat Clarke, Terry Campbell and Muriel Green.

The Art Hodgkinson Memorial trophy for the winning team of the Haliburton at Minden mixed bonspiel was awarded to the team of Reg Munns, Marion Ingram, Grace Munns and Clara Warren.

The second and third place teams in each league and each half were also awarded cash prizes. Congratulations to all the winning teams.

Our club has had a very successful season with as many as 23 teams curling in the mixed league. We thank all the members who participated last season and hope they will all be back, along with more new curlers for the next season in October.

The awards were followed by dancing to the music of D.J. Nick Rhodes and everyone enjoyed the evening immensely. Once again, our M.C. Ralph Kennedy, did a superb job of roasting many members and entertaining the guests with his many humorous jokes and skits.

See you all in October for another wonderful season of curling, healthy recreation, good fellowship and good sportsmanship.

Protecting the environment is our business

Report From Ottawa

by Bill Scott, M.P.

Environmentalism is everybody's business.

While governments at all levels may issue orders and make regulations, real reform happens only when people and governments work together.

Indeed, it is this understanding that motivates the federal government's recent Green Plan - a plan to consult all levels of society for advice and input on how to make Canada a more environmentally friendly nation.

But Canadians don't have to wait for a Green

Plan discussion session to begin changing the nation's environmental destiny; the opportunity is likely at a store near you.

On March 21, incidentally, the first day of spring-the first ten products to carry the federal Environmental Choice Program "Eco-Logo" were unveiled.

Products are eligible to bear the "EcoLogo" if they meet Environmental Choice guidelines. These guidelines, aimed at making the most out of recycling and reusing, now cover ten consumer product types. These are: lead-zinc batteries, water-based paints, fine paper from recycled paper, miscellaneous products from recycled paper, newsprint from recycled paper, heat recovery ventilators, thermal insulation from wood-based cellulose fibres, re-refined lubricating oil, products made from recycled plastics and cloth diapers.

The recipients of Environmental Choice certification are: Babykins Diapers, Breslube Oil, Mohawk Oil, DuPont Canada fencing made from recycled plastic, Benjamin Moore water based paints, International Paint, ICI Paint, Can-Cell and Fibrex cellulose insulation, and Noranda Forest Recycled Paper.

Guidelines for another five product types are expected soon.

To obtain the right to display the EcoLogo, manufacturers, importers and retailers must submit their products for testing and licensing to the Canadian Standards Association, which has been contracted by the Environmental Choice Program to do assessments.

Guidelines for certification are overseen by a 16-member committee.

The program is ideal in design. Consumers who, through their day-to-day purchasing decisions, want to take positive steps in the direction of environmental reform are able to do so; and manufacturers and retailers, too, are able to show corporate goodwill by working Environmental Choice parameters into their goods and services.

In the end, everyone wins.

Dorset Acid Rain Report

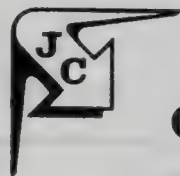

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of April 22 to April 28.

April 24, 14 mm rain, 4.3 pH, from Indiana, Ohio

Michigan to Southern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Rent hikes limited to 4.6%

by Doreen Hawman

The Ministry of Housing rent review guideline remains at 4.6 per cent for 1990. The guideline is simply that—a guideline. An amount by which a landlord can increase the rent for a unit during the year without an approval from the Ministry of Housing.

A tenant does not have to accept a rent increase at or below the guideline and may challenge an increase by applying to the Rent Review Board. Ninety days written notice of any increase must be given and can only be raised once in each 12-month period, even when a new tenant moves in.

For further information contact the Rent Review Services Office by dialing the operator and asking for Zenith 96000. Copies of the guide to The Landlord and Tenant Act are available at your nearest Information Centre.

In Haliburton, the centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 457-2733.

For residents of the Minden area, the centre located in the Municipal Building, Milne St., is open Monday and Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 286-4100.

EXPROPRIATIONS ACT

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL TO EXPROPRIATE LAND

IN THE MATTER OF an application by the Corporation of the Township of Lutterworth for approval to expropriate land being part of Lot 5 in Concession XII of the Township of Lutterworth in the County of Haliburton for the purpose of expansion of its municipal works yard.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application has been made for approval to expropriate the land described as follows:

Part of Lot 5 in Concession XII of the Township of Lutterworth in the County of Haliburton, designated Part 1 on a Plan of Survey dated the 22nd day of August, 1989, prepared by C.T. Strongman, O.L.S.

Any owner of lands in respect of which notice is given who desires an inquiry into whether the taking of such land is fair, sound and reasonably necessary in the achievement of the objectives of the expropriating authority shall so notify the approving authority in writing.

- (a) in the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail within thirty days after he is served with the notice, or, when he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;
- (b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

The approving authority is

NOTES:

1. The Expropriations Act provides that,
 - (a) where an inquiry is requested, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Attorney General;
 - (b) the inquiry officer,
 - (i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evidence and argument and to examine and cross-examine witnesses, either personally or by his counsel or agent, and
 - (ii) may recommend to the approving authority that a party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his cost of the inquiry not to exceed $200 and the approving authority may in its discretion order the expropriating authority to pay such costs forthwith.

2. "owner" and "registered owner" are defined in the Act as follows:

"owner" includes a mortgagee, tenant, execution creditor, a person entitled to a limited estate or interest in land, a committee of the estate of a mentally incompetent person or of a person incapable of managing his affairs, and a guardian, executor, administrator or trustee in whom land is vested;

"registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is specified in an instrument in the proper land registry or sheriff's office, and includes a person shown as a tenant of land on the last revised assessment roll.

3. The expropriating authority, each owner who notifies the approving authority that he deserves a hearing in respect of the lands intended to be expropriated and any owner added as a party by the inquiry officer are parties to the inquiry.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the Stanhope Firefighters, MNR Fire Office and our friends and neighbours who helped put out the fires on Buckslide Road. Your help was very appreciated.

Trevor & Kirsti

A party was held at the home of Mr. & Mrs. Frank Davis to celebrate his 82nd birthday. Nephew Murray Davis and his wife Shirley and Norman Graham came to play for us. We had a lovely turnout and everyone had a good time. All going well, we hope to have bigger one next year. Thanks to everyone who came and for the lovely gifts.

AT REST

HULBIG, MYRTLE O. entered peacefully into rest at the Scarborough Grace Hospital on Tuesday, April 10, 1990

AT REST

Myrtle Olga Hulbig who was in her 83rd year, was a loving friend of Mark and Nicole Cole of Scarborough, dear sister of John Hulbig of Minden, and Eva Procknow, of Campbellford.

Myrtle had retired from "Canada Trust" in 1972, with 45 years of service. Friends called at the Turner and Porter Funeral Home, 436 Roncesvalles Ave., on Wednesday, where the funeral service was held in the Chapel on Thursday at 2 p.m. Interment was in the Park Lawn Cemetery, in Toronto.

Myrtle was born in Lutterworth Township, and after her mother died, lived with the "Langdon's" and went to Minden School. After her business course in Toronto, she accepted a position with a Toronto firm as a stenographer, where she was to remain for the rest of her working years. 5A
